

Psychology of the Adult Learner (ALD 605)

An analysis of the developmental, social, and psychological characteristics of adults who are involved in post-secondary education and counseling. Attention is given to life-span developmental theories, principles of human growth, and learning with special emphasis on this age group.