WHO WE ARE

The Center for Faculty Excellence fosters faculty excellence through innovative teaching and leadership to create engaged student success. Using workshops, video presentations and individualized services we work with faculty to develop their talent and advance their outcomes, processes and engagement with CSU students, their careers and the University. The Center works closely with various Centers and departments across the University to fulfill its mission.

Workshops

In 2016-2017, The Center for Faculty Excellence is organizing close to 50 workshops on a wide range of topics, targeting both new and more experienced faculty. These workshops connect faculty to resources on campus and enable them to reach their goals in the classroom and beyond.

Individualized Services

The Center's staff is here to assist faculty on individual basis with a variety of teaching topics, including curriculum planning and pedagogical approaches and strategies and classroom management and assessment. The Center's staff can also provide guidance with course design and planning and with incorporating more technology into instruction.

Sustained Opportunities

In an effort to serve the faculty with long-term development opportunities, the Center gives out annual Teaching Enhancement Awards, organizes book discussions and provides Scholarship of Teaching and Learning Opportunities.

Center's Leadership

Dr. Goodell is Professor of Mathematics Education, Department of Teacher Education and has taught at Cleveland State University since 1999. She currently teaches courses for undergraduate and graduate students in mathematics methods and practicum and qualitative research. Her research interests focus on equity, reform and professional development issues in the teaching and learning of mathematics and related disciplines in high-schools and universities. Dr.

Goodell was instrumental in bringing the UTeach model to Cleveland State University, and is the Education Co-Director for the CSUTeach program.

OUR HISTORY AND CONTACT

The Center for Faculty Excellence, most recently known as The Center for Teaching Excellence, started its history in 1995 as The University Center for Teaching and Learning under the leadership of its first Director Bob Wheeler. Since its founding, it has awarded Teaching Enhancement Awards and offered a variety workshops on all aspects of teaching and learning.

In 2016, Dr. Joanne Goodell became the new director of The Center for Faculty Excellence.
