LEARNING OUTCOMES*

Career readiness of college graduates is of critical importance in higher education, in the labor market and in the public arena.

In accordance with its mission to lead the community focused on the employment of the new college graduate, the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) has developed a definition and identified competencies associated with career readiness.

The definition and competencies work to help close the gap between higher education and the world of work. They lay the foundation for the work necessary to prep college students for successful entry into the work force.

COMPETENCIES

Critical Thinking/Problem Solving: Exercise sound reasoning to analyze issues, make decisions and overcome problems. The individual is able to obtain, interpret and use knowledge, facts and data in this process, and may demonstrate originality and inventiveness.

Oral/Written Communications: Articulate thoughts and ideas clearly and effectively in written and oral forms to persons inside and outside of the organization. The individual has public speaking skills; is able to express ideas to others; and can write/edit memos, letters and complex technical reports clearly and effectively.

Teamwork/Collaboration: Build collaborative relationships with colleagues and customers representing diverse cultures, races, ages, genders, religions, lifestyles and viewpoints. The individual is able to work within a team structure, and can negotiate and manage conflict.

Digital Technology: Leverage existing digital technologies ethically and efficiently to solve problems, complete tasks and accomplish goals. The individual demonstrates effective adaptability to new and emerging technologies.

Leadership: Leverage the strengths of others to achieve common goals, and use interpersonal skills to coach and develop others. The individual is able to assess and manage his/her emotions and those of others; use empathetic skills to guide and motivate; and organize, prioritize and delegate work.

Professionalism/Work Ethic: Demonstrate personal accountability and effective work habits, e.g., punctuality, working productively with others and time workload management, and understand the impact of non-verbal communication on professional work image. The individual demonstrates integrity and ethical behavior, acts responsibly with the interests of the larger community in mind and is able to learn from his/her mistakes.

Career Management: Identify and articulate one's skills, strengths, knowledge and experiences relevant to the position desired and career goals, and identify areas necessary for professional growth. The individual is able to navigate and explore job options, understands and can take the steps necessary to pursue opportunities and understands how to self-advocate for opportunities in the workplace.

Global/Intercultural Fluency: Value, respect and learn from diverse cultures, races, ages, genders, sexual orientations and religions. The individual demonstrates openness, inclusiveness, sensitivity, the ability to interact respectfully with all people and understand individuals' differences.

DEFINITION:

Career readiness is the attainment and demonstration of the requisite competencies that broadly prepare college graduates for the successful transition into the workplace.

SUPERVISOR'S GUIDE

TIMELINE/INSTRUCTIONS FOR SUPERVISORS:

DAY 1: Orientation

- Office culture (dress code, use of mobile devices, use of social media, department policies, arrival and departure time, parking, events, etc.)
- Organizational chart (staff and reporting structure)
- Physical area (work space, restrooms, breakrooms, emergency exits, safety facilities, etc.)
- Technology (what is required/available for use and how to operate them)
- Duties and responsibilities (what student will be doing, expectations, goals, tasks, acceptable results, etc.)

WEEK 1: Orientation and expectations

- Determine weekly tasks and appropriate deadlines
- Coordinate a team/organization meet and greet
- Assign a project that the student will manage from start to finish, including deadlines
 - These tasks and projects should align with learning objectives; we recommend you determine together what those objectives should be and incorporate them in the Work Plan

WEEK 7-8: Complete Midterm Evaluation with student

- Using the weekly tasks and semester project that was determined on the student's Work Plan, assess the current results and share feedback with the student - both on quality of work content and interpersonal skill development (refer to Learning Outcomes)

WEEK 16: Complete Final Evaluation with student

- Using the weekly tasks and semester project that was determined on the student's Work Plan, assess the final results and share feedback with the student - both on quality of work content and interpersonal skill development (refer to Learning Outcomes)

TIPS FOR PROVIDING FEEDBACK

FOCUS FEEDBACK ON BEHAVIOR, RATHER THAN THE PERSON

It is important to refer to what the person does, rather than comment on what we imagine the person is. This focus on behavior helps to center on actions rather than qualities. “I noticed you talked for a few minutes,” rather than, “You are a loudmouth.” Focusing on behavior also relates to a specific situation, which can be changed. It is less threatening to hear feedback about behavior than traits.

FOCUS FEEDBACK ON OBSERVATIONS, RATHER THAN INFERENCES

Speak to what you can see and hear, not to your own interpretations or conclusions. “I noticed you looked down the entire time you answered that question,” instead of, “You looked sad when you answered that question.”

FOCUS FEEDBACK ON DESCRIPTION, RATHER THAN JUDGEMENT

Report what occurred; do not make judgements about good, bad, right, wrong, nice or not. Judgements arise out of a personal frame of reference or values, whereas descriptions are objective.

FOCUS FEEDBACK ON THE VALUE IT MAY PROVIDE FOR THE RECIPIENT, RATHER THAN THE “RELEASE” IT PROVIDES THE PERSON GIVING THE FEEDBACK

Before providing feedback, consider if it is in service of the client, or if it is about your need to give advice.

“The fear of feedback doesn’t come into play just during annual reviews... Many expect the worst: heated arguments, impossible demands...”

Those who learn to adapt to feedback can free themselves from old patterns. They can learn to acknowledge negative emotions, constructively re-frame fear and criticism, develop realistic goals, create support systems and reward themselves for achievements along the way.”

Jay M. Jackman and Myra H. Strober

“Feedback can provide learning opportunities for each of us if we can use the reactions of others as a mirror for observing the consequences of our behavior.”

Such personal feedback helps to make us more aware of what we do and how we do it, thus increasing our ability to modify and change our behavior and to become more effective with our interactions with others.”

Dr. George F.J. Lehner
