

GATEWAY ✦ COURSES

FACULTY LEARNING COMMUNITY

Faculty who teach gateway courses, defined as those 100 and 200 level courses that have more than 100 students enrolling over a calendar year, are invited to apply to participate in a faculty learning community that will examine how to apply current psychological science to their teaching to improve student success in their courses. Successful participants will receive $500 in professional development funds. See our website for more information.

Join us for five, 75-minute sessions on the following topics:

September 19: Cognitive psychology of teaching & learning - An overview

October 10: Application and examples from the content areas

October 31: Small teaching: predicting, growing

November 21: Fostering metacognitive strategies to improve study skills: Making exams worth more than the grade

December 12: Wrap up & planning to share our findings

Sessions will be held Thursdays at 10:15-11:30am.

**Note: if your course does not meet the definition of a gateway course, but you have evidence to suggest that it is an impediment to retention or graduation in your program, you may still apply.*

Please provide an explanation in your rationale for applying.
