WORKSHOP

12:00 – 3:00 pm

“LEADERSHIP PLUNGE” – MATHER MANSION 301

Kari Murphy and Kevin Bazner

INSPIRING STUDENT LEADERS TO TAKE THEIR LEADERSHIP TO THE NEXT LEVEL

In 2012, CAMPUSPEAK Interactive Workshops launched “Building New Leaders,” a workshop for emerging student leaders. That workshop helped potential student leaders think about the kind of leader they want to be, and how they might contribute to the campus community. The workshop has been so successful that many campuses started asking for the next thing – a version for more established student leaders.

We are happy to meet that need with a new workshop called “Leadership Plunge!” This is the workshop for engaged student leaders looking to kick their skills up a notch in a thoughtful, strategic way. In the Leadership Plunge workshop, CSU student leaders will examine their current leadership styles, diving deeper into situational leadership theory, in a highly interactive setting. Students will discover where they waste time, and learn the critical skills to help them succeed in the areas of student leadership that frustrate and hold them back.

One of the biggest take-a-way’s from this workshop will be the discussion of “crucial conversations” – those difficult times when student leaders need to hold their friends and members accountable for their choices. Student leaders frequently regard this as their most exhausting and draining challenge, and Leadership Plunge helps student leaders practice these skills in a supportive environment. In the course of the 3-hour workshop, student leaders are encouraged to commit to a campus culture at Cleveland State of higher accountability for all students.

Participants leave with a “leadership blueprint.” They set goals for their future involvement with an eye toward the most effective uses of their time. Kari and Kevin will create a fun, meaningful experience, and student participants will emerge as a more connected group – ready to lend support to each other as they plunge into the challenges that lie ahead.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Identify personal leadership styles that are utilized on a day-to-day basis
- Examine how your leadership values translate through your actions
- Demonstrate how to effectively navigate through different real life scenarios utilizing Situational Leadership Theory
- Understand how to create alignment and agreement by fostering open dialogue around high-stakes, emotional, or risky interactions
- Develop a course of action to continue developing your leadership abilities

WHAT CAS LEARNING AND DEVELOPMENT OUTCOMES DOES THIS WORKSHOP FOCUS ON?

- Practical competence
- Knowledge acquisition, construction, integration, and application
