

A Design Contest for Barrier-Free Living.

Are You Ready for the Challenge?

$15,000 in prizes, including a special Student Division

Visit our website ZeroThreshold.org to learn more about our ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN COMPETITION that challenges you to think about design differently.

ZeroThreshold is an international design competition for students and professionals who want to create the best concepts in barrier-free living. This design challenge will:

- Elevate the idea of accessibility through intentionally beautiful design.
- Change the conversation about accessibility.
- Potentially apply design solutions to cities throughout the world.

Entrants are encouraged to envision bold and innovative ideas for housing, public spaces, and neighborhoods that expand accessible design and barrier-free living.

More than A Design Challenge:

- Woven into the contest is a sub theme about overlooked Middle Neighborhoods and ways to improve inclusion and revitalization

- To that end, the competition is grounded by Cleveland's Old Brooklyn neighborhood for inspiration. Old Brooklyn is representative of neighborhoods throughout the world trying to find their place.

We invite you to register for the competition, invite your students or others, and join us in designing a world that is not only free of barriers – but freely admired for its beauty and innovation.

Early bird registration until March 8, 2019. Competition ends June 28, 2019.
